FIRST AID TRAINING 4 CHILDREN

First Aid Training 4 Children is a new scheme of work that has been designed specifically for children from the ages of 9 - 15 years old.

The aim of the work is to teach as many children and young people these all important lifesaving skills.

Course Content:

What is First Aid? - Actions in an Emergency
Recovery Position -
Calling 999
CPR
Choking
Management - Bleeding & Shock -
Fractures.

The course is 3 ½ hours long and can be broken into 2 parts. On completion of the course the children will be awarded a certificate.

Where in your school can First Aid Training 4 Children be used?

First aid training can be incorporated into many areas of the key stage 2, 3 & 4 curriculum and others areas of secondary school such as;

PSHE
Citizenship
PE
Sports
Leaders Award
ASDAN
Duke of Edinburgh - CCF and the new Uniformed Services Diploma.

Training children in first aid isn't just about learning a life saving skill. It can also boost a child's self-esteem, encourage teamwork and improve children's communication skills. The use of manikins in the classroom enables the children to get hands on experience in life saving techniques and a good knowledge of the human body. It also provides an opportunity for children to engage with voluntary work in their local community.

Teaching children first aid skills is of great importance. In many cases the administering of basic first aid, whilst waiting for an ambulance to arrive can make a vital difference to a patient .

Paul Ferguson - Area Director of the Ambulance Service NHS

February 2008

256 children an hour are taken to hospitals following accidents. At least 30 will die and 100 will be left disabled. Annually, 3,500 under 5-year olds are seriously scalded.

Where? Almost half of those accidents - that's a million each year - occur in the home. Around 40,000 occur on the roads.

Hugh Williams used excellent interpersonal and communication skills to motivate groups of pupils with widely differing ability and concentration levels, helping them to become competent first-aiders. Pupils really enjoyed the experience, due to Hugh's easy going personality and high level of subject knowledge, and we look forward to Hugh's return to work with more of our pupils .

Mr Tim Walker Head Teacher
Hitchmead SEN School

"Thank you for your extremely informative Young Lifesavers sessions you so kindly delivered to our Year 6 children recently. I know the children enjoyed the sessions and have talked enthusiastically about the skills they learnt from you".
